PERFORMANCE

Jai Sol art in the workplace can benefit employee wellbeing and performance. The office can be stressful and people become exhausted after prolonged periods focused work. Viewing our artwork helps workers restore mental energy, reduce stress, and increase cognitive performance.

UNITY

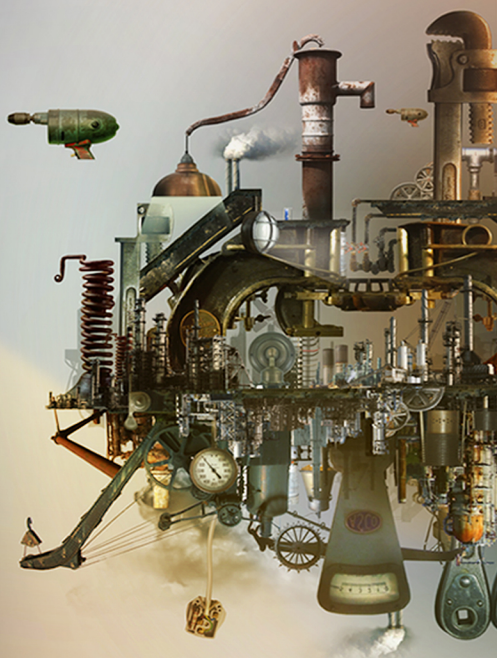

Our statement artworks illustrate challenges of common concern and collective identity, such as environmentally or politics. These works can support a feeling of unity, whether among employees or between an organisation and its clients.

TEAM WORK

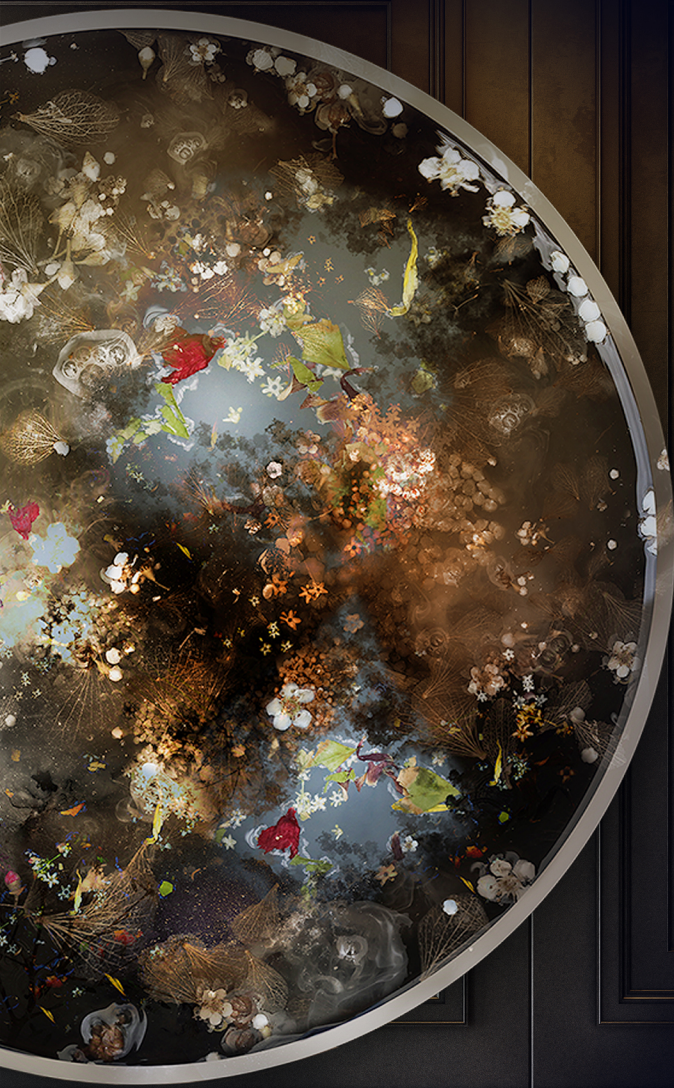

Our detailed artworks sure spark employee discussion, resulting in interpersonal interactions. If creativity, innovation, and open conversations are elements of your organisation's culture, engaging with our art can help substantiate these values and make them visually available.

BRAND PERCEPTION

Our artworks can communicate key brand messages in a non-verbal way. An organisation that displays our abstract, conceptual art may be perceived as contemporary, innovative and cutting edge. Companies showcasing our art conveying historical reference can be considered conservative, established and principled.

Our artworks can enhance offices, reception areas, boardrooms, or public spaces. Each piece conveys aesthetics and themes that inspire social interactions, thus strengthening teamwork, eliciting emotional responses, and facilitating connection, unity, and increased cognitive performance.

BENEFITS

Our artworks transport you to a different mental plane, experience emotional dopamine, and stimulate more efficient information processing, making you feel less rushed patient, and more willing to volunteer.

CULTURE

Our populist-themed pieces in the workplace can serve as an outlet for highlighting local culture and community, creating a bridge between the workplace and its surroundings.

MESSAGING

Our masterpieces convey messages or narratives that are ideal for your workplace, and is a form of communication to clients and customers and can improve employee experience and achievement.

LANDMARK

Workplaces can often feel bland, homogenised and overly functional. However, our dynamic artworks can function as a landmark in the space, adding nuance to the experience and transforming the layouts and aesthetics.

Our artworks are ideal for infusing offices, reception areas, boardrooms, or public spaces with landmark art that will help with team culture, stimulate positive energy and, through messaging, improve employee experience and achievement.

ARTIST

Manchester based Jai Sol is a visual artist with an established following of patrons, collectors and admirers worldwide who support his creativity and vision. His art is inspired by culture and spirituality and layered with narrative and concepts. Jai creates art to inspire people to look within and connect with their creativity.

Over the last two years, during the pandemic, Jai developed an idea to serve people with his art. He was particularly drawn to professionals in business who experienced drastic changes in working practices impacting their productivity and well-being. Many suffered from anxiety, stress, isolation, and disconnection from their working and personal lives. Jai wanted to help companies reconnect with their people and offer his art as an alternative way to inspire and motivate them. In January 2022, The Art for Corporate Wellbeing service was created.

"I believe it is vital now more than ever to inject creativity into the corporate world and use art to influence and inspire human connection and raise people's spirits. I know the experience of my art can reconnect employees with organisations, reinvigorate working environments both home & shared, and motivate employees."
